FACTS

Why?
Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.

What?
The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the product or service you have with us. This information can include:
- Social Security number and income
- Account balances and payment history
- Credit history and credit scores

When you close your account, we continue to share information about you according to our policies.

How?
All financial companies need to share customers’ personal information to run their everyday business – to process transactions, maintain customer accounts, and report to credit bureaus. In the section below, we list the reasons financial companies can share their customers’ personal information, the reasons Fingerhut chooses to share, and whether you can limit this sharing.

| How does Fingerhut collect my personal information? | We collect your personal information, for example, when you:
- Open an account
- Pay your bills
- Use your debit or credit card
- Give us your contact information
- Pay us by check
We also collect your personal information from others, such as credit bureaus, affiliates, or other companies. |
| Why can't I limit all sharing? | Federal law gives you the right to limit only:
- Sharing for affiliates' everyday business purposes – information about your creditworthiness
- Affiliates from using your information to market to you
- Sharing for nonaffiliates to market to you
State laws and individual companies may give you additional rights to limit sharing. |
| What happens when I limit sharing for an account I hold jointly with someone else? | Fingerhut does not offer joint Fingerhut Credit accounts. |
